had no new cases for several days. I like the cavalry service much better than the infantry as far as I have had a chance to judge. At any rate we will not have as much post duty to do as I got a letter from George while I was in the hospital, the day that nearly all of his company had inlisted in the regular cavalry amongst the rest. And that they were all going home on furlough.
I suppose they are there by this time unless Longstreet late demonstration against Knoxville has kept them there a little longer. The idea is generally prevalent here that Old Abe intends having this little matter of rebellion all settled up before the expiration of his term of office. I hope he will succeed and have but little doubt of his ability to do so. But this five hundred thousand more will stand a good
