General - The Clelland & Burnside war at Warrenton a day or two ago. I was not near enough to see them distinctly. Off to the east the latter was said to take the place of the former in command of the arm-not Garrison got word that morning that his wife was not expected to live.

We are travelling over a country county, large fields, and an old improved country, and only now are these a farmhouse, most all the houses are of an oldstyle with large and light chimneys and in most all cases put on the outside of the house. It's a tiny little town we live a schoolhouse.
