On this date, complainant told the Officer that she was in the Library, and remembers taking her library card out of her wallet. The wallet was taken from her purse. After completing her work, she left, but upon arriving to her car, remembered leaving her wallet on the computer stand. Complainant returned, and met with the maintenance employee and he helped her search, however, they were not able to locate the wallet.

Upon the officer's arrival, the computer tables were ALL searched, and the library had not had anything turned in. The officer escorted complainant to her car, where once again, her purse, book bag, and car was searched, however, to no avail.
